Things look a little different this month. The 30-year-old Publisher Program we've used for ages has been retired and removed by Microsoft from the 'Office' subscription which is paid annually and installed on the Update computer. Microsoft did not install a replacement program and like many other people who have used the publishing program for several years, your editor has not found another (free) publishing program that would provide an easy transition or be an appropriate fit for our purposes. Thousands are extremely unhappy about the program's removal - myself included. Doing my own research, I've discovered nothing as well laid out or as intuitive as the retired program.

As your editor for the past 12 years, it has been my pleasure to produce the monthly Update News in a tablet format. But due to the recent changes, we'll be concentrating for now on keeping our readers in the loop about upcoming 'events' - as mandated by the agencies which have granted funds to BBNBES to support of our community programs. Also, we will continue to provide the contact information (on the reverse side) for the businesses who have loyally supported our publication and served our community members.

A few 'apps' are certainly available; some are free, some require purchase and some even provide an online course (but at a cost). We are now in search of a New Editor, who would be willing to research a new app/ free program that could produce a multi-page tablet format newsletter suitable for both print and the website. If interested, please contact Karen at bbnbupdate@gmail.com (You can also find me at the BBNBES meeting on November 3rd.)
